The City of Laurel proudly joins the nation in observing Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) Heritage Month this May. This month is a time to honor the generations of AAPI individuals who have enriched America's history and are instrumental in its future success.

Throughout the month of May, we encourage residents to reflect on the cultural heritage, achievements, and civic leadership of the AAPI community. Laurel remains committed to diversity, equity, and inclusion as core principles that strengthen our community.

Trailblazers in Maryland and Prince George's County:

- Aruna Miller – The first Asian American elected to a statewide office in Maryland, currently serving as the 10th Lieutenant Governor of Maryland, and also the first South Asian woman elected statewide in the United States.
- Susan Lee – The first Asian American/Pacific Islander elected to the Maryland General Assembly, representing District 16 in both the House of Delegates and the Senate. She also became the first Asian American to serve as Maryland Secretary of State.
- David Valderrama – The first Asian American to serve in the Maryland State Legislature from Prince George's County, representing District 26 in the House of Delegates.
- Wanika Fisher – The first Asian American elected to the Prince George's County Council, representing District 2.
- Amy Jean Chung Fry – The first Asian American elected to the Cheverly Town Council, breaking barriers in local leadership.

As we celebrate these historic achievements, we also honor the many AAPI residents who contribute daily to the success of Laurel through entrepreneurship, education, healthcare, public service, and cultural enrichment.

Join us this month as we highlight local AAPI stories, support AAPI-owned businesses, and promote educational opportunities that celebrate the rich diversity of our community.

Proudly Serving You!

Special Announcement

Mayor Sydnor Announces All Full-Time Employees To Receive One Mental Health Day in Support of Personnel Wellness

In a groundbreaking initiative, Mayor Keith Sydnor has announced that every full-time city employee in Laurel will be granted one eight-hour day of administrative leave for personal wellness. This unprecedented move aims to promote mental wellness and acknowledges May as Mental Health Month. Employees can use this day between May 1, 2025 and June 30, 2025 by coordinating with their supervisor. Any unused hours will expire after June 30, 2025 and will not be carried over, emphasizing the city's commitment to creating a supportive work environment.

Mental health is a crucial aspect of overall well-being, yet it is often overlooked in the workplace. By promoting mental health days, the city aims to reduce stigma and encourage open conversations about mental health challenges. These initiatives are designed to empower employees to take care of their mental wellness, ultimately leading to a healthier, more productive workforce.

Mayor Sydnor Encourages Residents to “Move with the Mayor” This May

Mayor Keith R. Sydnor is joining mayors across the country in the Move with the Mayor® Spring Mental Health and Physical Activity Challenge, a national initiative promoting the connection between physical activity, mental health, and social connection.

The challenge, which kicked off on May 1 in recognition of Mental Health Awareness Month, encourages residents to stay active through walking, biking, yoga, meditation, and other group activities that foster social engagement. “Physical activity combined with social connection is good for our hearts and minds,” said Mayor Sydnor. “They can help us cope with anxiety, depression, stress, and other mental health challenges. I invite all City of Laurel residents to commit to connecting and moving more with our community.”

As part of the initiative, Mayor Sydnor will participate in several public events throughout the month:

- May 7 – “Pilates” at Club Pilates in Towne Centre Laurel from 2:00 PM to 3:00 PM
- May 11 – “3-Mile Walk” at Laurel Lakes starting at 9:00 AM
- May 17 – “Kids to Parks Day” from 3:00 PM to 5:00 PM

According to the CDC, mental health is a key part of overall wellness. Regular physical activity and strong social connections can help reduce the risk of heart disease, improve mood, and enhance quality of life. “The research is clear,” said John M. Clymer, executive director of the National Forum. “Connecting with others while staying active makes a real difference in both mental and physical health.”

City Hall in the Park Returns Residents Turn Out for an Evening of Connection and Conversation w/ City Leaders

The first City Hall in the Park event of 2025 officially kicked off on Thursday, April 24th, at Granville Gude Park, and what a fantastic evening it was!

This signature community event brought residents together to engage directly with the Mayor, City Council, and Department Heads in an open, friendly setting. Neighbors of all ages came out not just to share their ideas and voice concerns, but also to enjoy the warm spring weather and connect with one another. From 6:30 to 8:00 p.m., the park was alive with energy! A DJ kept the vibes upbeat, kids lined up for colorful face painting, and families gathered to enjoy free hot dogs, hamburgers, and soft serve. Meet Dr. Tiffani Andorful: District 1's New Voice on the Prince George's County School Board

In November 2024, Dr. Tiffani Andorful was elected to Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) as their District 1 Board of Education representative, which includes Scotchtown Hills Elementary School, Laurel Elementary School, and Laurel High School. The Washington, D.C. native and PGCPS graduate has dedicated her career to advancing educational equity and fostering collaboration through inclusive coalition-building efforts.

Laurel Living sat down with her and spoke of her journey to the PGCPS District 1 Board of Education representative and the importance of her job.

Laurel Living: You're a mom to two children: a current second grader and an incoming PGCPS student. What did you see as a mother that inspired you to run for this position?

Dr. Tiffani Andorful: "I'm a product of Prince George's County Public Schools, but now, as a mother, it really allows me to see our school system in a different light. There were a lot of similarities, from what I saw as a student and now from what I see as a mother. I knew there were a lot of questions that I just did not have the answers to. I wasn't sure where to get those answers. As parents, there are a multitude of questions we have when we're trying to make the best decision that we can for our children as it relates to education.

I saw an opportunity where I can assume a position on the front lines, dive in headfirst and try to make sure that I was asking the necessary questions not only for parents, but for community members more broadly. That's what really made me want to take that step, as a parent, and do what I could to get those questions answered and take the information I learned and make sure I was sharing those more broadly with the community."

LL: You taught social studies at Ballou High School, a now thriving high school in D.C. How did teaching social studies there inspire your path to education activism?

TA: "My experience as a teacher at Ballou was one of the most pivotal experiences of my life. My time at Ballou really allowed me to see how there were a lot of similarities between [my experience as a high school student and] the role of a teacher.

I was wearing different shoes, looking at different classes. Now I'm an educator and I'm able to say, 'What role do I play in helping shape the lives of these students?'

I saw that as a teacher, we truly have the ability to shape the lives of our students. We not only serve as teachers; we often serve as guidance counselors, we serve as therapists... There's just so many hats that educators wear. While I enjoy the opportunity to serve on a micro level, working directly with students, I wanted the opportunity to impact change on a larger scale. I was thinking about what specific changes could I help shape or put in place that would trickle down and have an impact on the lives of my students who were in the classrooms, all those who followed and my future children."

LL: You were the first in your family to graduate college. Do you want your journey to inspire students in similar situations whose parents didn't graduate college?

TA: "Of course. I do not take the experience I was afforded lightly. My mother, my grandmother, my great grandmother, my aunt, all of whom I lived with growing up, did everything they could to ensure I had a different experience than they had. My grandmother had an eighth-grade education. My mother is now in her second year of college. She was able to get her associate degree while I was in college, so I inspired her.

I think it's important to know for students or for children from similar backgrounds or maybe didn't have that example that they know anything is possible. The sky's the limit. This generation, there are so many more opportunities available. I truly hope I can, if nothing else, serve as an inspiration, even if in a small way. I was a very persistent child as my mother would always tell me. But did I think I would be here at this point? No. Did I have hopes that I would make a difference in the lives of whoever I could and then I would find my purpose? Certainly. So, I'm fortunate I'm at this point right now."

LL: You mentioned in an interview with The Diamondback, University of Maryland's student newspaper, that it was important to have teachers and parents' voices on the board, people who understand PG County firsthand and who are invested. How will you make sure all those people get involved?

TA: "I think having diverse perspectives on a board is extremely valuable. If you think about boards in general, there is true value in having diverse perspectives. When you think about having someone who brings a parent perspective, you think about someone who's bringing an educator's perspective, someone who's bringing in the perspective of having actually gone to the schools are all invaluable.

We cannot make decisions in a vacuum. While I may have had experience as an educator, while I may be a parent, I'm certainly not representative of all parents or community members. We have to ensure that we are actively seeking out their perspective, their opinions and their knowledge. I've made it a point to exert myself and attend as many events as I can, especially when it comes to some areas where I know there's some huge need. I'm doing everything, in short, to try to bring folks into the fold to educate. I'm also learning a lot from some of our more seasoned board members as to how to do that well."

LL: As a board member, you hope to create safer schools, enhance college readiness and attract and retain high-quality teachers. What specific ways will you ensure these goals are achieved?

TA: "Some of what I just referenced is one of the ways I have to make sure that I'm doubling down to ensure any of those things happen, which is going directly to those who will be impacted. There are a lot of great things happening within our district. In order to ensure that we are doing everything we can to ensure they're safe for schools is to actively engage with the administration that's working on all our safety initiatives. A lot of the work starts from hearing about school safety measures, some of the plans that have been put in place, actually learning and assessing some of the data that we have about what has been effective and what hasn't.

The role of a board member is rather complex. I think there are some misconceptions about what we are able to do. If I were to boil it down, quite simply, it is about us being able to provide oversight, governance and make sure we're asking the necessary questions to move work forward. There's a need to double down in some areas to make sure we're reaching those who are most in need and pushing forward some of those things that you need."

Where Laurel Comes Together

Celebrating National Public Works Week 2025: "People, Purpose, Presence"

National Public Works Week (NPWW) 2025 is fast approaching, and it's time to recognize the critical role that the City of Laurel's public works professionals play in shaping and sustaining the communities we live in. Celebrated from May 18-24, 2025, this year's theme, "People, Purpose, Presence," honors the dedication, passion, and impact of the public works workforce.

What is National Public Works Week?

Since 1960, the American Public Works Association (APWA) has spearheaded the celebration of National Public Works Week to raise awareness about the essential work done by public works professionals. From water treatment and transportation infrastructure to waste management and public safety, public works are the backbone of every community's quality of life.

The theme of "People, Purpose, Presence" highlights the cornerstone values that drive public works professionals:

- People: Meeting the needs of our communities with service, care, and dedication.
- Purpose: The reason behind public works—the vital role of improving life in every corner of the community.
- Presence: The ever-present efforts of public works professionals that often go unnoticed but are essential to keeping cities, towns, and municipalities running smoothly.

Acting Director of the City's Department of Public Works, Thomas Helms, applauded the dedication of Laurel's DPW workers: "At Public Works, we are proud to be blue-collar workers. It's not about who's better; it's about knowing that not everyone can do what we do. While others plan, we build. While others manage, we fix. Our hands, our sweat, and our skills keep everything moving. There's pride in every callus and every shift. Without us, the gears don't turn."

Public Works in Action

Public works encompass a wide array of services that ensure the smooth operation of local communities. This can range from the construction of roads and bridges to maintaining clean drinking water and ensuring safe waste disposal. Public works professionals are often the unsung heroes who work tirelessly behind the scenes to ensure that these essential services are delivered efficiently and effectively.

Many times, public works professionals will never meet the people whose lives they impact. Yet, when everything is functioning as it should, the work of public works is invisible—often taken for granted. Nevertheless, their presence is constant, ensuring the daily needs of our residents are met and the community continues to thrive.

Reflection and Remembrance

Honoring National Police Week: May 11-17, 2025

Each May, our nation pauses to recognize the service and sacrifice of law enforcement officers through National Police Week, and in 2025, the City of Laurel will once again take part in this important observance by attending in-person events in Washington, D.C.

Hosted by the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund (NLEOMF), this year's commemorations include the 37th Annual Candlelight Vigil, which will take place on Tuesday, May 13, honoring the brave men and women whose names have recently been added to the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial.

"National Police Week is always very important to law enforcement, their families, and especially survivors of the fallen. It's only proper that we take a moment every year to remember our fallen, their families, and remember the sacrifices so many people make in order to keep all of us safer in our communities," says Laurel Police Chief Hamill. "I would encourage everybody during the week of May 15th to take a moment and remember the sacrifice somebody made for you, so that you can be safe in your community, so that we can enjoy the freedoms provided to us every day. I've worked with a number of officers that we've had to lay to rest after sacrificing their lives, and it is not without meaning, it's not without importance, it really matters."

Each year, National Police Week draws tens of thousands of officers from around the world to Washington, D.C. Together, they attend ceremonies and events that serve as powerful reminders of the courage, dedication, and ultimate sacrifice made by law enforcement personnel in the line of duty.

This observance was first established in 1962, when President John F. Kennedy signed a proclamation declaring May 15 as Peace Officers Memorial Day and the week in which it falls as National Police Week. The City of Laurel is proud to stand in solidarity with law enforcement professionals and to honor the legacy of those who have given their lives in the service of others.

From Service to Strength Congratulations!

Local Tribute, National Honor

Mayor Keith Sydnor and the City of Laurel Honor the Legacy of the Trailblazing 6888th Battalion Ahead of the Congressional Gold Medal by Congress

On Monday, April 28, the City of Laurel and Mayor Keith R. Sydnor welcomed family members and supporters of the historic 6888th Central Postal Directory Battalion to the Laurel Municipal Center to honor their service and legacy. The ceremony recognized the Battalion's recent awarding of the Congressional Gold Medal—one of the nation's highest civilian honors.

The 6888th, known as the "Six Triple Eight," was the only all-Black, all-female unit to serve overseas during World War II. Over 800 women from the Women's Army Corps were deployed to Europe in 1945, where they played a vital role in processing backlogged mail for U.S. troops. In Birmingham, England, they cleared more than 17 million pieces of mail in just three months—half the time the Army projected. Their motto, "No mail, low morale," reflected the importance of their mission in maintaining soldiers' spirits during wartime.

Laurel Mayor Keith Sydnor, a military veteran, spoke passionately about the significance of recognizing this overlooked chapter in American history. "You can't leave out certain parts of history, because that's what motivates people. That's what motivates me," he said.

Family members shared personal memories of their loved ones who served in the 6888th. Brenda Partridge Brown, daughter of battalion member Willie Belle Irvin, described discovering the full impact of her mother's military service years after her passing. "There were a lot of stories told. I gathered them up and composed a little book about her and her memories," she said.

Colonel Yolanda Gore, the first woman and second person of color to serve as Fort Meade Garrison Commander, credited the 6888th for paving the way for her achievements. "Those 850 Black women stood up against racism, bigotry, and doubt. It is the only reason I'm standing here," Gore said. Only two members of the battalion are alive today. Retired Major Fannie McClendon, 104, was represented at the event by her niece, Dianne Mouton-Allen, who likened the recognition of her aunt and fellow soldiers to the spirit of Hidden Figures: "She helped to set the tone for the young people today."

To ensure their story is remembered, District 21 Delegate Joseline Peña-Melnyk sponsored legislation establishing March 9 as 6888th Central Postal Directory Battalion Day in Maryland.

On April 29, 2025, the U.S. Congress officially awarded the Congressional Gold Medal to the 6888th Battalion in a ceremony at Emancipation Hall in Washington, D.C. This recognition came 80 years after their deployment and decades of advocacy to acknowledge their contributions.

Connecting Community

Sydnor Administration Observes Fair Housing Month with Action

In recognition of Fair Housing Month, the City of Laurel held a community-focused Fair Housing and Resources Event at the Craig A. Moe Laurel Multiservice Center. The event brought together a wide range of organizations—from banking institutions and mental health care providers to legal aid representatives and members of the sheriff's department—to support both landlords and tenants with valuable tools and information.

Open to all local residents, the event served as a one-stop shop for those seeking guidance on housing rights, financial empowerment, legal assistance, and wellness services. Nonprofits in attendance highlighted that many families are still recovering from the lasting economic and emotional impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic. This event aimed to bridge those gaps by connecting residents directly with the resources they need to thrive.

Mayor Keith Sydnor, a longtime advocate for community upliftment, emphasized that fair housing goes beyond access to a home—it includes access to opportunity, equity, and dignity. “It’s our responsibility not only to educate but to empower,” said Mayor Sydnor. “Events like this encourage residents to take advantage of what’s available and remind them they’re not alone in their journey.”

As part of its ongoing commitment to inclusivity and accessibility, the City of Laurel will continue to offer programming that informs and equips residents with essential knowledge and support. Fair Housing Month is not just a moment of reflection—it’s a call to action, reminding us all of the importance of safe, stable, and fair housing for every member of our community.

Enhancing Community Preparedness

Be Prepared: Severe Storms and the 2025 Atlantic Hurricane Season

June 1st marks the start of the Atlantic Hurricane Season with preliminary outlooks calling for 17 named storms, nine (9) of which may be hurricanes. Four (4) of the hurricanes could be major hurricanes, with a categorical intensity of 3 or higher. The season ends November 30th. Although Maryland may not be impacted by as many tropical storms and hurricanes as southern states, damaging severe weather can still occur. With its varied geographies and numerous waterways, Maryland can be impacted by hazards such as flooding, hail, tornadoes, lightning, and high winds. Of these hazards, flooding is the number one weather-related hazard for the State of Maryland.

In preparation for the severe weather associated with hurricane season and the summer months, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), the National Weather Service (NWS), and the Maryland Department of Emergency Management (MDEM) host two awareness weeks aimed at educating the public and providing preparedness resources. The first of these weeks, Severe Storms Awareness Week, occurred from April 7 – 13, 2025. Each day of the week explored a different aspect of severe storms, what they mean, how they work, and what citizens can do to prepare. The hazards discussed were flooding, damaging winds, tornadoes, hail, and lightning.

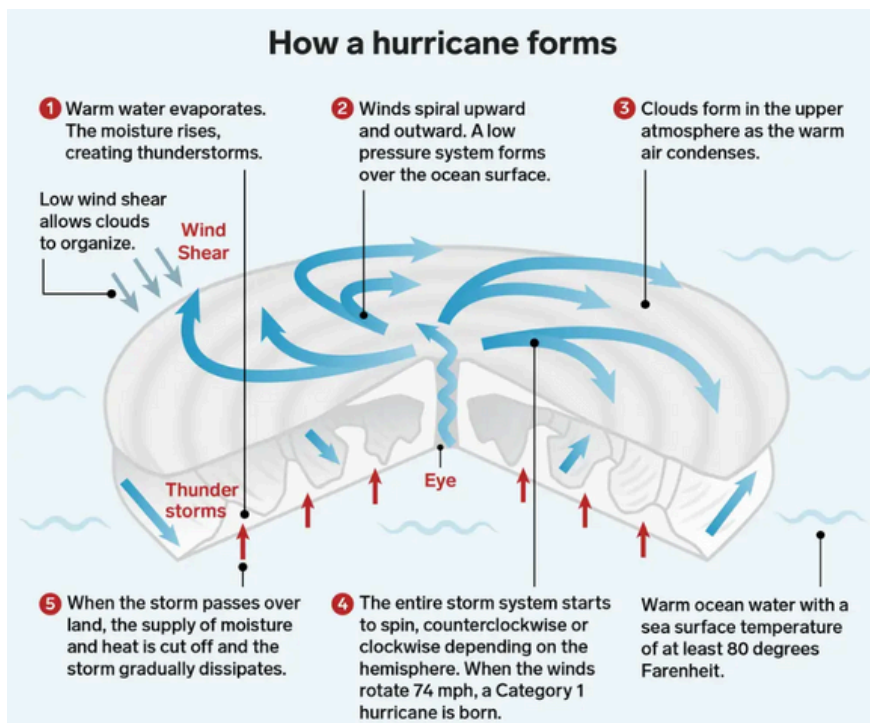

To learn more about severe weather, please visit <https://mdem.maryland.gov/Pages/severe-storms-week.aspx>.

National Hurricane Preparedness Week will occur from May 4 – May 10, 2025. The goal of Hurricane Preparedness Week is to improve the nation's readiness, responsiveness, and overall resilience against hurricanes during the upcoming season. This year's scheduled topics include:

- 💧 Know Your Risk: Wind & Water
- 💧 Prepare Before Hurricane Season
- 💧 Understand Forecast Information
- 💧 Get Moving When a Storm Threatens
- 💧 Stay Protected During Storms
- 💧 Use Caution After Storms
- 💧 Take Action Today

Remember that it only takes ONE storm to cause significant damage. Each and every year it is important for citizens to prepare their families, friends, and communities to respond to and recover from severe weather events.

For more information and to participate in this year's National Hurricane Preparedness Week, please visit <https://www.noaa.gov/hurricane-prep>.

Safety is a Shared Responsibility

National Dam Safety Awareness Day: Recognizing the Risks

The issue of dam safety was not widely recognized until 1889 when the South Fork Dam failed, flooding the nearby town of Johnstown, Pennsylvania with more than 20,000,000 tons of water. The wave of water measured 35 – 40 feet high and hit the town at 40 miles per hour. As a result, the flood killed approximately 2,200 people and caused more than $17 million in property damage. The incident response was the first major peacetime disaster relief effort for the American Red Cross, whose efforts were led by Clara Barton. In remembrance of this tragedy, Dam Safety Awareness Day is observed each year on May 31st.

Established in 1999, National Dam Safety Awareness Day's primary goal is to encourage individual and community responsibility for dam safety and to provide information on what steps can be taken to prevent future catastrophic dam failures. A secondary goal is to promote the benefits that dams offer to communities. Benefits of dams include water supply for domestic, agricultural, industrial, and community use; flood mitigation; clean, renewable energy through hydropower; and recreation.

The City of Laurel is situated below the T. Howard Duckett Dam, which is opened and operated by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC) Water. In an effort to mitigate against and prepare for a dam failure, WSSC Water shares its Emergency Action Plan (EAP) with the City of Laurel Department of Emergency Management (DEM). DEM also participates in tabletop exercises, which test WSSC's plan to identify and resolve resource and procedures gaps. In 2023, the Dam received several concrete fortification upgrades, which will help the Dam withstand a 1 in 10,000-year flood, otherwise known as a Probable Maximum Flood (PMF). PMF is defined as 32 inches of rain falling over a 72-hour period.

Happy Spring City of Laurel,

May you find this letter in good health and happiness. We have a major problem with not being able to find volunteers for the Laurel Volunteer Fire Department. People are not inspired to help within our communities and this is a major problem for us all. I am looking for thinkers that think outside of the box to resolve the issues that have plagued our city.

On another note, we should be grateful for our Laurel Police Department that are working vigorously to protect our community, families and properties. We should be tired of allowing criminals coming into our city committing acts of violence and crimes. The days of being soft on crime in the City of Laurel is over. As always, if you have any questions or need assistance, please email me at jmills@laurel.md.us. Click here to watch my full interview on Laurel TV.

WHAT'S HAPPENING IN YOUR BACKYARD!

- In March, I attended the National League of Cities (NLC) Congressional Cities Conference in Washington, D.C., to advocate for Laurel. Laurel was the first city in the nation to pass a resolution supporting the preservation of the federal tax exemption of municipal bonds, a crucial tool for funding infrastructure.
- I encouraged other cities and state municipal leagues to take similar action, as protecting municipal bonds remains NLC's top priority. These bonds are essential for building and repairing infrastructure, and losing their tax-exempt status would raise costs for taxpayers. I remain committed to fiscal responsibility for Laurel's residents.

RESIDENT Q&A

Question: I feel helpless under the current federal administration. What can I do to make a difference?

Answer: Get involved! Many advocacy groups and volunteer organizations need your help today. Volunteerism has declined in recent years, yet it remains the most effective way to create change. You can't make change from home—real impact requires action. Whether you're passionate about education, public safety, the environment, or social justice, there are many ways to contribute. Join a local nonprofit, serve on a government committee (local, county, or state), or engage with local political parties. Attend city council meetings, support grassroots initiatives, and encourage others to get involved. Small, consistent efforts add up—your voice and actions can truly make a difference in your community.

Dear Residents,

I always love May when both nature and activities 'spring' to life! For our family, that means t-ball league has arrived, camping opportunities with the Cub Scouts, enjoying more outdoors time at our local parks, cookouts with friends & family, and more. On that note: A reminder that you can rent out pavilions at our parks and rooms at our pools for your family or group gatherings by calling Parks & Rec at 301-725-7800.

Some City Council news items to share with you as well: I'm happy to report that my legislation to remove the 5-year limit for seniors & veterans to claim their property tax credit passed. Plus two important items are coming in May: our election law re-write and our City budget. Click here to watch my latest interview on Laurel TV!

WHAT'S HAPPENING IN YOUR BACKYARD!

- I was able to attend the "Preakness Preview" race at Laurel Park on April 19 where our contingent met the lead planner for the Preakness Festival and got a hint of what they're planning for the Preakness' 150-year anniversary to be celebrated in Laurel come May 2026!
- Our monthly "City Hall in the Park" series kicked off in April and'll continue each month through September where you can come out, enjoy some free food & music, plus connect with the Mayor, members of Council, and City Department Heads to learn more & ask any questions you have!

RESIDENT Q&A

Question: How do residential rental units work in the City?

Answer: All residential rental properties need to have a "Residential Rental License" and renew it each year. It covers everything from individual rooms in a house, to detached homes, to above/ below business residences, to hotels and apartment units. The license is part of ensuring that rental properties meet safety and maintenance standards, like adequate fire safety, appropriate heating/air conditioning, and related.

You can reach out to the Fire Marshal & Permit Services at 301-725-5300 for additional info.

As we welcome May, our city is in full bloom. The weather is getting warmer, and there will be plenty of community events, outdoor activities, and new opportunities to connect. I'm excited to share updates on local projects, upcoming initiatives, and ways you can get involved in shaping our community.

Remember, your voice matters. I always appreciate hearing from you — whether it's a concern, an idea, or a success story. Your input guides decisions and ensures we're building a city that reflects the needs and values of everyone who calls it home. Let's continue working together to make our city vibrant, inclusive, and strong.

Wishing you a joyful and safe month ahead! Click here to watch my latest interview on Laurel TV!

WHAT'S HAPPENING IN YOUR BACKYARD!

- We've seen a recent rise in car break-ins across the city. Please remember to lock your vehicles, remove valuables, and avoid leaving items in plain sight. Park in well-lit areas when possible and report any suspicious activity. Staying alert and proactive can help keep our neighborhoods safe for everyone.
- May brings exciting events & milestones! As city pools open for the season, be sure to check schedules & safety rules. Congratulations to our graduates and their families! Check out Main Street Festival and LakeFest, both packed with fun, food, and music. Come out, celebrate, & enjoy everything our community has to offer!

RESIDENT Q&A

Question: Will the City continue to provide funding for the Laurel Independent newsletter?

Answer: As the city budget is currently under review, continued funding for the Laurel Independent newsletter is being carefully considered along with other community priorities. I recognize the value it brings in keeping residents informed and connected, and I'll advocate for a balanced budget that supports transparency, engagement, and local journalism.

Haitian Flag Day, May 18th

This May, we wish to give a spotlight to different cultures here in Laurel. Haiti is the first Black nation to gain their independence on January 1st, 1804.

Prior to their independence, on May 18th, 1803, the enslaved Haitians took the French flag, ripped out the middle, and, under the guidance of the legendary Haitian leader Jean-Jacques Dessalines, Catherine Flon knitted the blue and red together, thus giving birth to the flag that is known today. Up until 1986, there have been various versions of the Haitian flag that have been used; however, the symbolic palm trees and coat of arms with the motto of the island, "L'union Fait La Force" (Unity means Strength), have always been involved.

Haitian Flag Day has been celebrated in the culture of Haiti for 222 years, where they celebrate their independence and honor the hard work of their ancestors with dance and delicious food, ranging from fried plantain, goat, black rice, brown rice, and many more options to choose from.

CHEZ YIAMME'S

CATERING & FUNCTIONS

To join the celebration of 222 years of Haitian Flag Day, Chez Yammie Catering and Functions, located at 347 Main St., Laurel, Maryland will be hosting a pop-up brunch on May 18th @ 12noon-4pm.
